HOW TO WRITE WITH YOUR HEART

Mini Workbook for Writing the Perfect Vows

PETITEWEDDINGHAWAII.COM

Your wedding ceremony can be a combination of traditional ceremonial words of love and commitment crafted specially together with your officiant.

However, many modern couples choose to add their own words, their own vows to their traditional ceremonies.

Your personal vows are ultimately unique, meant only for the ears of your chosen other half, written from the depths of your most treasured memories and your glowing heart. Your vows will be the most remembered words you will ever utter to your significant other...

GET THE JUICES FLOWING

No pressure.

Your vows are only the most powerful, profound words you will utter to your significant other... EVER. You sit down, with a new, nicely weighted smooth gel pen, and a crisp blank sheet of paper in that new special notebook you just bought for the purpose of composing epic vows...

and not a single word gets written on that page!

Not for a lack of things to write, but there's just SO much to say - you don't know where or how to start!

Don't panic!

You're in the right place!
Use the following workbook questions below to lure out the poet & romantic lover in you...!

Creating deeply profound vows requires reflection and sincerity. Here is a list of questions that can help you delve into the depths of your relationship and articulate your feelings in a meaningful way:

What qualities in your partner inspire you the most, and how have they impacted your life?

What are some specific moments or experiences that have solidified your commitment to your partner?

How do you envision your future together, and what role do you see each of you playing in it?

In what ways has your partner helped you grow or become a better person?

What promises are most important to make to your partner, and why do they matter to you?

How do you handle challenges together, and what strengths do you draw upon in difficult times?

What are the little things about your partner that bring you joy or make you smile?

How do you define love, and how does your partner embody that definition for you?

What are your shared values or dreams that you cherish and want to nurture in your relationship?

How do you express gratitude for your partner's love and support?

Reflecting on these questions can help you create vows that are personal, heartfelt, and truly reflective of your unique bond.

YOU MAKE ME SMILE

Incorporating an inside joke or a touch of personal humor into your wedding vows can add a delightful and memorable twist to your special day. It provides a unique opportunity to showcase the genuine bond and shared experiences that define your relationship. Whether it's a playful reference to a shared hobby, a humorous nod to a quirky habit, or a lighthearted mention of a memorable mishap, these personal touches can evoke smiles and laughter from both your partner and your guests. They can also serve as a reminder of the fun and joy that underpin your partnership. Just remember to keep the humor heartfelt and considerate, ensuring that it resonates with the warmth and love you feel for each other. This approach not only lightens the mood but also reinforces the authenticity and depth of your vows.

The Funny Things ...

Our Inside Joke

That One Time...You...

When I think of that time we ----- I laugh until my ribs hurt!

PUTTING IT ALL TOGETHER

*Your ideas are all down on paper now.
But how do you organize everything you want to say?*

*Here is a simple sample outline/order of ideas
you can use to guide your personalized vows:*

- Start with: Defining who this special person is to you.
- What it is you love about them the most
- Share a personal story of triumph or inspiration.
- I promise to...
- The funny stuff
- I'm here, even when times get rough.
- Looking forward to our Future Together (goals you both have planned)
- Mushy Lovey Dovey Sweet Gushings
- Ending: Most importantly say "I love you."

Now with having jogged your memory about why you're marrying the most wonderful person on earth, write to your hearts content! Fill these empty pages with your undying love and promises to that beautiful person you love!

MY VOWS TO YOU MY LOVE...

TIPS FOR YOUR WEDDING DAY VOWS

Don't feel pressured to memorize your vows after laboriously and lovingly composing them.

Email or text a copy to your Officiant, who can keep a copy on hand, just in case.

Print out your vows, or write them in a pretty little notebook. (Some couples order special "Vows" books for the ceremony.)

Do practice reading your vows out loud. Sometimes the written word does not smoothly translate to the spoken word.

Take a deep breath, and relish this one special moment you stand before your significant other.

Perfection is not necessary, so relax and speak with your heart!

Above all, remember to write your vows only with your beloved in mind! Don't worry about pleasing guests or leaving out things you think are too mushy.

Chances are your mushy is absolutely perfect for your beloved significant other!

GOOD LUCK & CONGRATULATIONS!
